Dear Mr. Schávelzon:

The enclosed sheet will give you a description of the Ordóñez y Aguiar manuscript in our collection. It is a contemporary copy, in several hands of the work, but it apparently contains no notes as to who actually copied the work or indeed if any of it is in the author's hand. You may order a microfilm copy of the work for your own research, subject to the conditions set forth on the enclosed form. We do not normally make copies of our manuscript materials for deposit in other institutions, but your library may make a formal request to our Director, James D. Hart, for special permission to have a copy for the library.

I regret that we have no further information about the manuscript; I suspect that you would be able to furnish us with such information based upon your comparison with other copies of the manuscript.

Sincerely yours,

William M. Roberts
Assistant Head
Public Services
